5. Complete the following for each program that you aired during the past three months that meets the definition of Core Programming. Complete chart below for each Core Program.

Title of Program #1: Histeria!			Origination Network
Days/Times Program Regularly Scheduled:	Total times aired at regularly scheduled time	Number of Preemptions	If preempted, complete Preemption Report
M-TH 7:30AM	52	0
Length of Program: 30 (minutes)
Age of Target Child Audience: from 6 years to 12 years

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming. The goal of this series is to give children an awareness and appreciation for history and historical topics. The program also strives to increase young viewers' core historical knowledge base (i.e.: fact-based knowledge and general knowledge of historical trends, themes, and movements), as well as enhancing their knowledge and understanding of different ethnic, religious, geographical, cultural and gender-based groups throughout history in order to increase tolerance and promote diversity.

Preemption Report

Complete the chart below for each core program listed in Question 5 of FCC 398 that was preempted during the past three months.

Title of Program #1: Histeria!
Total Times to be Aired	Number of Preemptions	Number of Preemptions Rescheduled

Date Preempted/Episode # (1)	If rescheduled, date and time rescheduled	Is the rescheduled date the second home? Yes No
If rescheduled, were promotional efforts made to notify public of rescheduled date and time? ___ Yes ___ No
Reason for Preemption: ___ Breaking News      ___ Sports      ___ Other ___ Other News      ___ Public

Title of Program #2: Detention		Origination Network
Days/Times Program Regularly Scheduled:	Total times aired at regularly scheduled time	Number of Preemptions	If preempted, complete Preemption Report
FRI. 3:00PM	13	0
Length of Program: 30 (minutes)
Age of Target Child Audience: from 6 years to 11 years

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming. The goal of this series is to develop positive personal qualities and pro-social behaviors such as : truthfulness, kindness, initiative, sharing and leadership. The program also aims to teach young viewers to critically assess and value their own capabilities and skills, leading them to an appropriate sense of self-esteem, self-confidence and independence. Viewers will benefit from observing the kids in "Detention" make choices in order to deal with the predicaments and challenges with which they are faced. Viewers will also have an opportunity to build self-esteem as they identify with characters similar to themselves, and build tolerance as they get to know different types of characters. By focusing on the relationships, adventures, and concerns of a group of middle school students, the series provides the young viewing audience with a non-threatening arena from which to observe and learn from the actions of others.

Subject: 1st Quarter 2001: WB Television Network Commercial Information
And Educational Programs

WB Educational Programming

Attached is a list of 1st Quarter 2001 WB Children's Programming for your public files.

Statement

This statement is designed to furnish you with additional information concerning the commercial matter contained in the network's children's programs, and to enable you to more easily comply with the requirements of the Children's Television Act of 1990.

The following is a list of all WB Television Network programs which were produced and broadcast with the intention of primarily reaching an audience of children twelve years old and younger that were scheduled for broadcast during the first quarter of 2001. Each of these programs were formatted to allow for no more than 10.5 minutes of commercial time per hour on weekends and 12 minutes of commercial time per hour on weekdays. The actual number of network commercial minutes were included in the network traffic reports for the first quarter of 2001, which each affiliated station has received heretofore.

The "E/I" notation represents "core" educational programming on The WB that The WB believes meets the FCC educational programming three (3) hour processing guideline.

Generation O!
(premiered August 26, 2000)

Curriculum Statement
Donald F. Roberts, Ph.D.

Mission: Generation O! seeks to engage and delight young, grade-school children (7 – 9 years) while promoting positive pro-social models of life-skills and character development as it portrays how an eight-year-old “normal kid/famous rock star” deals with the kinds of day-to-day problems that all children must confront.

Need: The period from the 2nd through 6th grades (7 – 12 years) marks dramatic changes in children’s lives. Youngsters move from a world of relative dependence in which most activities still revolve around the immediate family, to one of relative independence marked by growing mobility and contact with new people, new situations, new ideas. During those few short years children must establish independence, explore new possibilities, and respond to new demands from outside the family, while simultaneously continuing to relate and interact within the family. They must add new and different dimensions to their developing view of the world as they struggle to adjust and integrate the old view.

This is not an easy task. The myriad new situations that confront children as they approach adolescence create a good deal of uncertainty. They are experiencing a pull between the world of “my family” and the world of “me and my friends.” At the same time kids begin to explore how to function as an independent person, they also begin to develop concern with how others evaluate them. At the same time kids begin to realize the wide array of options open to them, they also become concerned with the possibility of embarrassment and fear of failure, and run the risk of limiting options. Small wonder that many children find the world a scary place. Small wonder that parents often bemoan the dearth of models and “scripts” that can help show children how to balance the demands of family life, peer pressure, and individuality. Small wonder that many parents call for more television programming portraying the kinds of values and behaviors that can help children successfully navigate these critical years.

Survey after survey demonstrates that parents consistently identify such characteristics as honesty, perseverance, independence, self-efficacy, and respect for diversity as the kinds of traits they want their children to acquire. Parents also nominate such life skills as getting along with others, literacy, good study habits, helping, sharing, and general civility as critical to their children’s development. And rightly or wrongly, parents frequently complain about the difficulty of locating television programs for young viewers that offer effective models of these attributes. “If we can use television to teach preschool children the alphabet and good manners,” they say, referring to programs such as Sesame Street, “Why can’t we use it to promote life skills and character development among older children?”

Generation O!’s response to that question is: “We can.”

Concept: What do you get when two worlds collide? On the one hand, take the familiar world of a bright but oh-so-normal 8-year-old girl from Appleton, Wisconsin... a world of parental love and discipline, other regular kids on the block to hang out with, a rotten older brother, elementary school, play dates, family outings – a normal 8-year-old's reality. On the other hand, give that girl deviated tonsils, a voice that can peel paint, a major recording contract as the lead singer of a smokin' hot rock n' roll band, and stardom. What do you get when those two worlds collide?

You get Molly O!... a very special, very regular, very unusual, very typical 3rd grade girl who worries about tomorrow's arithmetic test at the same time she pens the lyrics to another gold record; who loves adoring fans but wants to blend in like a regular kid; who longs to play the late show even though she falls asleep by ten; who bounces from sold-out rock arenas to recess in the schoolyard and from rubbing elbows with major celebrities to arguing with a very jealous brother and negotiating a later bedtime with her somewhat square but wonderfully wise parents. More to the point, you get continual opportunities to witness an appealing, eight-year-old role-model deal with the kinds of concerns and problems that all growing children confront. Some are big issues: the nature of friendship, the importance of perseverance and honesty, the benefits of cooperation; some are smaller, but no less important issues to 7- and 8-year-olds: bedtime, ear-piercing, bed-wetting. But regardless of size or nature of the problem, Molly O! handles them in ways that young viewers can identify with and learn from. They can share Molly's triumphs and failures, look at problems in new ways, and most important, they can learn along with Molly what it takes to become a self-reliant, competent, caring individual...with the kinds of traits and character that parents say they want their children to have.

Approach: Several principles derived from theory and research on how children learn from television underlie Generation O's educational approach. These include the notion that

1. effective lessons emerge seamlessly from stories;
2. young viewers attend to and acquire the beliefs and behaviors of interesting, attractive models – models with whom they identify;
3. children learn best when messages are concrete and explicit;
4. associating positive consequences with the beliefs/behaviors we would like to promote (and negative consequences with those we would like to de-emphasize) increases viewers' learning.

The lesson in each episode of Generation O! emerges directly from the story – that is, the story is about the point of the lesson. Thus, an episode that seeks to promote the value of cooperative effort focuses on Molly and her brother's struggle to recognize and find a way to combine their very different talents in order to solve a large problem. Similarly, an episode about the power of words – especially the power of ill-advised words to hurt another – emerges seamlessly from a narrative in which Molly's hit song about her brother ("Boys Drool") angers every boy she knows and teaches her that she need to think about the lyrics she writes.

Almost any third or fourth grader can find a bit of herself in Molly. She is the kind of character kids recognize, like, and model themselves after. Molly is smart, self-reliant, funny, fun, talented, brave, and a major recording star with her own fantastic (in every sense of the word) rock-and-roll band. But that's not all. Molly is also a regular kid. She is beset by the kinds of doubts and uncertainties every kid can relate to – not to mention a brother whose role in life seems to be to torture her, and parents who make her eat her vegetables, do her homework, and get to bed on time. Molly O! is someone any kid can understand, admire, and identify with...the kind of character kids pay attention to and learn from.

Finally, Molly's adventures and the lessons that emerge from them are presented concretely, explicitly, and with clear consequences attached. When Molly does the right thing, good things happen. When she – or more likely, her brother Buzz – does the wrong thing, bad things happen. The stories are careful never to preach, never to stop and point at “the moral” or to underline “the lesson. Nevertheless, they (a) make it quite clear that Molly O!, her family, and her pals do, in fact, learn from their adventures and misadventures; and (b) they leave little doubt in the mind of an attentive viewer about what is learned, about how Molly O! would act and most kids should act in a variety of situations that are relevant and important to 7- through 9-year-olds.

Attractive and engaging characters, entertaining story lines about the kinds of situations and issues that concern 7- through 9-year-olds, lessons that flow seamlessly from those story lines and that examine the issues in concrete, explicit terms that children can understand – all these elements combine to make Generation O! a prime example of the power of combining entertainment and education.

Generation O!

Episode synopses and FCC lessons
Donald F. Roberts

1. Damp Sheets

Synopsis: When Molly O! flies to Washington to sing in support of her Senator's Presidential campaign, she discovers he is not a very nice man and decides not to perform. The unsavory Senator tries to force her to sing by threatening to reveal one of Molly O!'s most embarrassing secrets: that somewhere in her past there lurks a bed-wetting accident following an excess of Punch Fun. That's when Molly O! learns that that being open and honest about her "secret" removes its power to embarrass – not to mention that she is not the only one ever to have had such an "accident."

Lesson: Things that are talked about openly lose their power to embarrass.

2. Girls Rule

Synopsis: Molly O! composes a new tune to retaliate against brother Buzz's unrelenting teasing – a tune not meant for public release informing him that "girls rule and boys drool." But when Buzz finds a way to go public and helps turn "Girls Rule, Boys Drool" into a hit recording, Molly O! discovers not only that many of the boys in her life are hurt and angry, including her best friend Chadd, but that she has started a small-scale war between males and females across the world. As Molly O! finds a way to explain that her song was not about all boys, but just about Buzz, she also learns that words can hurt, and that one needs to choose and use them carefully.

Lesson: Careless words can hurt. Be careful what you say about others.

3. Our House

Synopsis: Frustrated by constant distractions, and eager to be fully rehearsed for a live radio performance of the band's new single, Molly O! gets Colonel Bobb to rent a house for the weekend so that they can practice free from interruptions. At the house, her family won't leave, the press descends on them, the band has problems and Molly O!, feeling increasingly stressed, becomes more and more difficult. Eventually Molly O! learns that she has to ease up and relax if she ever wants to get the band back on track and be ready for the concert.

Lesson: When pressure and worries mount, sometimes the best thing to do is take a break, have some fun, and relieve the stress.

4. You Copied

Synopsis: “The Dancin’ Schuberts” – brother/sister act, Appleton residents, and has-been entertainers – accuse Molly O! of plagiarizing one of their songs. The charge is false, but at least one music “expert” agrees, and the Schuberts have decided to sue. As Molly O!’s friends point out in other ways she appears to have copied, Molly O! begins to wonder: “Am I a big copier?” With Nub and Chadd’s help, Molly O! eventually sees clearly that she did not copy and that she simply needs to trust herself.

Lesson: Don’t give in to self-doubts; trust your instincts and believe in yourself when you know you have done the right thing.

5. Boys May Be Boys

Synopsis: Miffed by her exclusion from a males-only Father & Son event, Molly O! (with Eddie’s help) disguises herself as a boy to gain entry. She delights in the masquerade, even though her get-up makes her look like her pesky brother, Buzz. Her hoax goes awry when she accidentally destroys a sign at the Fond Du Lac Cheese Factory – and Buzz is falsely blamed. Molly O! is torn between confessing or letting Buzz, who has gotten away with so much in the past, take the blame.

Lesson: Honesty is the best policy; take responsibility for your own actions.

6. Pierced Ears

Synopsis: When Molly O! is given an earring by Flea, her favorite Powder Girl, she decides she absolutely must have her ears pierced. This is not a decision with which Mom agrees, particularly since pierced ears require a good deal of care and Molly O! has proven herself to be somewhat irresponsible when it comes to accepting responsibility for cleanliness. Molly O! tries a variety of ploys to convince Mom she should be allowed to pierce her ears, but they all fail. It is only when Molly O! recognizes that pierced ears do require special care, and demonstrates that she really can take responsibility for keeping herself and her ears clean that permission is granted.

Lesson: If you want to be treated as a responsible person, then you need to be willing and able to take responsibility for keeping yourself clean and healthy.

7. Deviated Tonsils

Synopsis: When Molly O! learns that her precious deviated tonsils have to come out, her imagination runs wild. She conjures up all sorts of needless fears, the worst of which is that she will lose her singing voice. She tries anything and everything to avoid a tonsillectomy, but finally the throat bothers her enough that she has to face facts and enter the hospital...where she ultimately learns that a tonsillectomy is “no big deal” and that her fears were all unfounded.

Lesson: Having your tonsils out is not the end of the world; don’t let your imagination run away with you if you have a problem that requires a visit to a doctor or hospital.

8. Look Alike

Synopsis: Molly O! has a song that is so popular it is driving Buzz nuts. When Buzz discovers that Molly O! hates people imitating her, he masterminds a Molly O! Look Alike Contest at the Mega-Mall in order to drive his sister insane. He almost succeeds, until Molly O! and one of her imitators discover the value of each other as individuals, the uniqueness of themselves, and that it’s what’s on the inside that counts.

Lesson: The value of a person is not what they look like, but what they are like “inside.”

9. Going Solo

Synopsis: When Nub wins the Hall of Famous Rock and Rollers “Best Sideman” award, he is pressured into leaving Molly O!’s band and striking out on his own – going solo. Trouble is, he doesn’t want to leave Molly O! and she doesn’t want him to leave, but both are reluctant to tell the other. With Nub out on his own, Molly O! and the band faces a series of crises: they can’t find a new bass player, Buzz floats a rumor he is joining the band, and YoYo becomes desperate for a decent meal. Finally, when Nub’s first song tells Molly O! how he really feels about her, they both learn that it is best to tell friends that you care about them.

Lesson: It’s important to let friends know you care for them and what they mean to you.

385- Bedtime Blues

Synopsis: Even after Mom says “No,” and points out what Molly O! is like when she does not get enough sleep, Molly O! is determined to prove that an eight-year-old is old enough to stay up past midnight to watch her favorite comedian host Saturday Night Late. The real test comes the next day when Molly O!, exhausted, gets a last minute request to be the musical guest on Saturday Night Late that night.

Lesson: Parents have good reasons for establishing bedtimes, and kids who ignore them do so at their own risk.

Synopsis: When Molly O! tries out for the school choir, her unique voice and singing style keep her from blending in with the other singers. As a result, she is not invited to join the group and be part of the Christmas Pageant. Fearful that she will be ridiculed if the other kids find out the famous rock star wasn't chosen, she pleads for a second chance. In struggling to find a way to blend in, she almost silences her unique voice and strains her friendship with Chadd. Finally she learns that there are times to blend in and times to be unique, but that you should never give up what is uniquely special about you.

Lesson: Sometimes it's good to be part of a group; sometimes it's good to stand out; but never turn your back on what makes you unique because of a wish to fit in with others.

12. Whatever Happened to Molly O!?

Synopsis: A rumor surfaces that Molly O! is not Molly O!. Rather she is a 40 year old man named Melvin playing the role of Molly O!. Molly O! thinks the rumor is silly, until it takes on epic proportions, evolving from silly speculation to a world-wide belief that Molly O! is missing and Melvin is "the man!" As the rumor takes on a life of its own, Molly O! comes to understand just how foolish and hurtful rumors can be.

Lesson: Rumors, the people who pay attention to them, and the people who spread them, are foolish and often hurtful, and deserve to be ignored.

13. The Defiant Ones

Synopsis: Watching Buzz's amateur video about his bizarre room, a shocked Molly O! realizes her brother Buzz is a talented artist. With Buzz's video haunting her, she writes a song describing the macabre contents of Buzz's room, and she finds herself with an angry brother, another hit on her hands, and a public clamoring for a music video. Molly O! realizes Buzz is the only one who can create the vision for her video, so she must figure out how the two of them can stop bickering and work together to produce the video. Overcoming seemingly insurmountable sibling rivalry, both Molly O! and Buzz learn the benefits of ignoring differences, combining talents, and working together.

Lesson: When individuals with different tastes and ideas learn to work together, combine talents, and cooperate, wonderful things can happen.
